The United States Constitution mandates that a census of the entire population be conducted every ten years. The 23rd Decennial Census will be conducted in 2010. Although this seems like a long time from now, many preparations must be performed in advance of 2010 and the Census Bureau needs to hire qualified persons at all levels to work on-site and in the field.

The Chicago Region is responsible for all census operations in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. Field offices will be opening throughout the region starting in the fall of 2008. Hundreds of people with various skills are being sought to fill a variety of positions now.
